SAIL AHEAD project consortium will organise four distinct national conference events in Turkey, UK, Greece and Finland to bring all target groups together in each country and in order to present the SAIL AHEAD project and its results to boost dissemination and exploitation of the project at a larger scale.

SAIL AHEAD was launched to provide an on-line career guidance tool for a second career for captains and deck officers ashore. The project has studied the knowledge, skills and competencies captains and deck officers acquired during their studies in nautical academies as well as through the experiences they have gained performing their job. The project maps knowledge, skills and competencies needed to perform a variety of alternative jobs and identifying different career paths. SAIL AHEAD provides an online careers tool, career path information and interviews with maritime professionals working in the different careers ashore.

A distinguished forum of international speakers will present and initiate discussions about the different career possibilities with their experiences both at sea and ashore. A demonstration of the SAIL AHEAD online careers guidance tool will also take place. The workshop would provide an opportunity to seek the views and look at the issues from the different perspectives of the Maritime professionals, academics, policy makers and international organisations but above all the maritime industry.
